ECC Prof Contributes To 'Life'

ics instructor, noted through-out the world for his colorful approach to science and the teaching of science, tells his story in "Life" magazine, which will go on the stands Tuesday.

Tuesday.

The article, written by staff writer David Scherman, will portray elements of Miller's philosophy of teaching.

Reflecting a demand which now exists for Miller's lectures and appearances throughout the world, the article will cover three pages. It is abundantly illustrated, including pictures of El Camino students and children of the area who observed experiments in the Milserved experiments in the Miller home in Torrance.

"THIS STORY communicates to readers throughout the world the idea that in physics we need abundant demonstra-tions, done dramatically and with spirit," Miller stressed.

Miller's lectures are booked solid through the summer of 1968, but he has no plans whatsoever of leaving the El Camino campus permanently.

The professor, who proudly The professor, who proudily proclaims he has never had a free moment in his life, receives from 10 to 20 speaking invitations throughout the world per week, but accepts only one of 40.

Known by millions for his appearances on the Steve Allen show Miller heads for Austra-lia this summer for a 10-week engagement which will include has conducted physics classes at universities, colleges, teach-ers' seminars and high schools for the past 25 years.

Miller has also worked under Professor Albert Einstein at the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton,

THROUGH his long experi-ences as a teacher, Miller has conducted more than 2,500 separate physics experiments and has had to construct his own special apparatus in most Unlike many people, Miller can't conceive a certain goal in life. He reflects that if money is to be a goal he has long since surpassed it.

For Julius Summer Miller, life, with all its accompanying beauties and heartaches, is vi brant and dramatic with never a moment to waste.
